ABOUT THE DESTINATION

Nag-Atup (Atup-Atup) Falls is uniquely situated within the jurisdiction of Culandanum, Aborlan, while its primary access trail begins in Dumanguena, Narra. This cross-boundary location makes it a rare and exciting trekking destination in Palawan.

Reaching the falls is an adventure in itself. Visitors should expect an approximately 3-hour trek going to the falls, and slightly less than 3 hours on the return, depending on pace and weather conditions. The trail is moderately challenging, characterized by rocky terrain, dense forest paths, and multiple river crossings. Along the way, trekkers are rewarded with breathtaking scenery, including a hidden waterfall that adds to the overall immersive experience.

One of the most striking features of Nag-Atup Falls is its dramatic landscape. As visitors approach the destination, they are surrounded by towering rock walls covered in lush green moss and vegetation, creating a natural canyon-like environment. High above, a remarkable rock formation connects two massive cliff faces, forming what looks like a natural bridge or "roof." This unique feature is where the name "Atup" originates, a local term meaning roof, perfectly describing the rock formation that appears to shelter the space below. Hence, the name Nag-Atup (Atup-Atup) Falls.

The combination of rugged rock formations, flowing streams, and rich greenery makes Nag-Atup Falls not just a destination, but a truly unforgettable natural experience.

Surrounded by untouched landscapes, Nag-Atup Falls offers a refreshing escape for nature lovers and adventure seekers. Its raw beauty and limited development make it ideal for those looking to experience Palawan beyond the usual tourist spots, while also emphasizing the importance of environmental preservation and responsible tourism.
